

The Royal Veterinary College “HR Excellence in Research Award” - 10 year review.

Award Date: 27th January 2012; 10 year Review Date: 15th September 2022

Background

The Royal Veterinary College (RVC) is a small specialized institution, the UK's largest and longest-established independent veterinary school and is a Member Institution of the University of London. The mission of the RVC is to be a leading international authority in education, clinical care, research, expert opinion, and employment in veterinary and biomedical sciences. The Royal Veterinary College (RVC) have been proud holders of the Research Association (RA). All ECRs are members, and it is run by a committee of six enthusiastic ECRs. This group has been established for many years, is fully embedded into the RVC life, and is part of our internal evaluation process. This process was overseen by the Research Concordat Working Group (RCWG). The terms of reference for this group are to promote the Research Strategy of ECRs within the RVC, and to and progress and achievements against the 2020-22 action plan, and critically work is required.

Feedback helped determine progress of our action plan. Researchers' and PIs' feedback through the Culture, Employment and Development in Academic Research Survey, which included additional questions specific to the RVC. The response rate was strong (63%) and the results were reviewed by the RCWG, and appropriate changes were incorporated in the new action plan. The present review is also informed by the progress of the action plan and more widely the working life of ECRs through six monthly and monthly informal meetings between the Chair of RCWG, Human Resources Committee.

Progress and reflections on progress

As our commitment to developing ECRs, and we have made considerable progress, this will continue for the next period. Nevertheless, the COVID pandemic impacted our ability to achieve some of the action plan, particularly within the originally envisaged

Our activities set out in the action plan seemed to impact on a high level of job satisfaction (90%), feeling valued at work (86%) and feeling included in their research environment (91%) within our ECR community. This is significantly higher than the national CEDARS (75%) and gives us confidence that we are gradually enhancing the working lives of our ECRs despite some concerning individual narratives and there being plenty more to do.

We have a history of working collaboratively and productively and a strong collective commitment to continue to enhance the researcher experience at the RVC.

A key learning point from our previous plan is that with so many actions it has been hard to keep the focus on the most important areas and so plan to highlight the following themes.
